In a recent online forum hosted by the Northeastern Iowa Synod, three retired bishops shared some of the qualities that they think people should look for in a bishop. Piety, stewardship, integrity, teamwork, courage, vision, faithfulness, passion, servanthood and administrative skills were named, among others.

Voting members for this year’s Northeastern Iowa Synod Assembly will consider those qualities and more as they prepare to elect a bishop on June 12. The Assembly’s “Celebrating Renewal” theme will set the tone with its focus on Johannes Bugenhagen, parish pastor of the Reformation, who is regarded for his leadership qualities as a church administrator and is a model for Lutheran bishops of today.

The Rev. Dr. Martin Lohrmann, associate professor of Lutheran Confessions and Heritage for Wartburg Theological Seminary, will present the Assembly keynote about Bugenhagen, who is sometimes called the organizer of the Reformation.

“Bugenhagen organized for the sake of the gospel and was good at putting ideas into practice,” Lohrmann says. “He connected money with mission, and that is still important for us today.”

Lohrmann, who has written several publications about Bugenhagen and the Reformation, says he became interested in Bugenhagen when he started a Ph.D. program in Reformation history.

“I wanted to know more about the pastors of the Reformation and how their ideas were being put into practice, and Bugenhagen proved to be a great person to study,” Lohrmann says. “It helped me to know the teamwork side of the Reformation and how the leaders worked together to solve problems. They showed how faith and good works go together in the Lutheran tradition.”
RESPECTED PASTOR, ORGANIZER, FRIEND AND COLLEAGUE

Bugenhagen was a priest and a teacher at a monastery school in the northern part of Germany when he became interested in the Reformation. He had read Martin Luther’s Prelude on the Babylonian Captivity of the Church and wrote to Luther, who in turn sent Bugenhagen his book On the Freedom of a Christian.

“Bugenhagen got so excited he moved to Wittenberg to learn more,” Lohrmann says. “At 35 years old, he became a student again.”

In Wittenberg, Bugenhagen became Luther’s colleague, friend and pastor, and was part of Luther’s team translating the Holy Bible from Greek and Hebrew to German. Bugenhagen was a skilled teacher and pastor, and in just two years he became the lead pastor in town. He was promoted to Doctor of Theology at the University of Wittenberg, where he went on to ordain a generation of Lutheran pastors.

Lohrmann says that one of Bugenhagen’s great skills was how he connected faith of the heart with how to live it out every day. Bugenhagen developed a “common chest” to organize church finances so that some funds would be used for salaries and building maintenance, and some for mission to help the poor and fund schools and health care.

“It was a very detailed financial system for making sure churches were doing ministry with commitments to the social good so that people were not going hungry,” Lohrmann explains. “People would have money they needed for salary and firewood, and for town doctors and schools.”

Bugenhagen outlined for churches how to set up schools for basic literacy and math, how to pay for the schools, what to look for in teachers, and why setting up schools is good for society to prepare young people to take over.

“He had a very well-rounded 360-degree approach to establish education for citizens.”

Lohrmann says that Bugenhagen was so good at organizing, he would sometimes leave Wittenberg to help establish the Reformation in other places, including Denmark and Norway. He helped form the church of Denmark in Copenhagen, where he installed the church’s first bishops and crowned the King and Queen of Denmark.

Bugenhagen’s leadership demonstrated that church and faith is something people can live out in their daily life and in their institutional life to take care of the community.

“That’s why it is so important to have good preaching,” Lohrmann says. “The church puts good things in our hearts so that we can share it and change how we live together as communities in the world.”

Lohrmann notes that Bugenhagen is also known for his intimate knowledge of the Bible. He really listened to the stories of the Bible and used Luther’s translation of the Bible to create a version in a dialect of Northern Germany.

“We can see how familiar Bugenhagen was with God’s story and with God at work in this world,” Lohrmann says. “He helps us remember that when we know the Bible, we know who God is for us, how God has worked in the world in the past, and how God is working in the world now.”

Throughout his ministry, Bugenhagen encouraged church members to love and to be compassionate. He was supportive and pastoral to Luther when he would occasionally get down about things. After Luther’s death, Bugenhagen helped care for Luther’s widow and children. Bugenhagen, along with his colleague Philip Melanchthon, worked together to be faithful to Luther’s legacy to keep the church going.

“Other Lutherans criticized how they did it, but they worked with integrity,” Lohrmann says. “Bugenhagen went through hard times, but he always tried to be faithful to the Gospel and to the well-being of the church.”

An Update on New and Changing Guidelines

NEW CDC GUIDELINES FOR CONGREGATIONS TO CONSIDER

As we all live into the new CDC guidelines issued on May 13, congregational leaders and rostered leaders are starting to review their practices for worship and for other programs. In good Lutheran fashion we all are asking: What does this mean? The guidelines are straightforward for a number of settings in our lives—no masks needed if you are fully vaccinated. The guidelines remind us to be watchful in larger groups or settings where we are in close quarters with a group where we wouldn’t know if the others are vaccinated or not—think grocery store, for instance—but so far the guidance for faith-based communities hasn’t been updated by the CDC.

You’ve been working through your policies for many months now through the pandemic. You’ve been resourceful, careful, and thorough, and I believe you have made responsible and wise choices in your settings. As we slowly move out of our more strict policies toward more of what we remember pre-pandemic, I encourage you to be patient, take your time with changes, and work together for the benefit of all, especially the most vulnerable.

I am repeating my encouragement to you to get vaccinated if you aren’t already. This will protect us and those we come in contact with, to a great extent. Getting vaccinated is a wonderful way to show your neighbor you care about them, as well as care for your own health. Having many people vaccinated has brought us to this point of being able to gradually rejoin our former lives. Let’s keep that trend going by taking advantage of the opportunities to get vaccinated. It does make a difference.

Masking is a wise choice in settings where there is a large crowd (indoors) and not adequate ventilation or distancing. Masking is also a good idea in settings where you don’t know if folks are vaccinated or not. We do have more freedom now in regard to wearing masks. Please exercise this new freedom carefully.

I continue to keep you all in my prayers, and trust God’s faithfulness to us in all ways.

NEW EDITION OF ‘DEFINITIONS AND GUIDELINES FOR DISCIPLINE’

Since the early days of our existence as the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), we have had guidelines for how we will interact with and behave toward each other. Often these have been recognized as guidelines for ordained/rostered ministers, but in fact they are for all congregations and they apply to all members of the Body of Christ who identify as ELCA Lutherans, as well.

Over recent months the existing Definitions and Guidelines for Discipline have been under review by the Discipline Committee of the ELCA. A number of drafts have been reviewed by the ELCA Church Council, the Conference of Bishops, and others. At its April 2021 meeting, the ELCA Church Council passed the newest version of this document. (The entire document is available on the ELCA website, and the Northeastern Iowa Synod website). So it is timely for me to mention this new version here for your information, lay and rostered alike, and to encourage you to review it and take its message to heart. The “message” is expressed in this paragraph near the beginning of the document:

“When the gift of relationship with God and our neighbors is violated or used inappropriately, there is a need for accountability and just action. It is in this context that we, as a church body, establish guidelines for our conduct, actions, and ways in which we communicate with one another. These guidelines are necessary as we “continue in the covenant God made with us” in our baptism to ensure that all people, and the church in particular, are protected from harmful or inappropriate actions, speech, communications, or other misconduct. As church, we must abide in a context that holds ourselves, and one another, to account for the sake and care of the whole church.”

I like several things about this paragraph and its description of why we would as a church have need of Definitions and Guidelines for Discipline of ourselves. I specifically like the description of our relationships to one another as a gift from God, which sets the framework for the document. I am reminded that through baptism, we are made family, siblings in Christ, and therefore in relationship with one another. We talk about our church relationships with words that echo that understanding: “My church family,” “Our family’s pastor,” “Our Church Home”

Tri-Synodical Fall Conference to meet in person and online

Leading in Difficult Times
Sept. 20-21, 2021

Registration is open for the 2021 Tri-Synodical Fall Conference set for Sept. 20-21. Rostered ministers from the three Iowa ELCA synods are invited to join this two-day conference about leadership during difficult times. Keynote speakers will be the Rev. Eric Barreto, the Rev. Jack Shitama and the Rev. Phil Hirsch, executive director of the ELCA Domestic Mission Unit.

The conference will be offered both in-person at Lutheran Church of Hope in West Des Moines and live online. The committee will monitor COVID-19 trends to determine if it’s possible to safely gather in September. If it’s not safe to gather, the event will be held online only.

Registration is $65 per person regardless of in-person or online attendance. Registrants will be able to change registration from in-person to online, depending on COVID-19 protocols as they are comfortable. Because of meal and facilities planning, the last date to change registration will be Sept. 1. A block of rooms has been reserved for a reduced rate at the Sheraton Hotel in West Des Moines.

REGISTER FOR WIYLDE

July 23-25, 2021

Registration for the Wholly Iowa Youth Leadership Discipling Event (WIYLDE) is open through Thursday, July 15. The event will take place July 23-25 at Ewalu Bible Camp near Strawberry Point with the theme, “Leading in the WIYLDE.”

High school youth from ELCA congregations are invited to attend WIYLDE to learn how to become future leaders of the church. This year’s WIYLDE will focus on leadership skills that students can use in their congregations and beyond. The event begins at 6:30 p.m. Friday, July 23, and includes group teaching and discussions, games and campfires. WIYLDE will conclude Sunday, July 25, with an 11 a.m. worship service, which parents are encouraged to attend. The event will follow the same COVID precautions and guidelines that Ewalu will have in place for summer camp.

The $60 registration fee per student includes lodging, meals, and a T-shirt. Congregations are encouraged to contribute $30 toward that fee. To learn more and to download the registration form, visit www.neiasynod.org/wiylde.

GOD’S WORK. OUR HANDS.

Sunday, Sept. 12, 2021

ELCA congregations from across the country will join in service projects for “God’s work. Our hands.” Day of Service set for Sunday, Sept. 12. The ELCA website offers numerous resources, promotional items and ideas for service projects to help others during this time of COVID.

One idea that congregations of the Northeastern Iowa Synod may want to consider is building a Little Free Pantry with grant money available from Our Savior’s Lutheran Church in Leland. (Read more on page 7.)

An email with the link to join this session will be sent to voting members.

Each voting member will need to use a desktop or laptop computer with a microphone and speaker to participate in the assembly. Cell phones and iPads will not be fully supported with this technology. A video giving an overview about how the LUMI technology works is available for voting members to view on the synod assembly web page.

People will also be able to view the video on the Northeastern Iowa Synod YouTube channel, www.youtube.com/channel/UC1k-lpf_a7V5iPs6CZgcrg.
Earlier, Saint Paul’s Lutheran Church and School in Waverly gave a special gift to the Northeastern Iowa Synod allowing us to offer small grants to help other congregations who were not online to acquire new technology to continue to share the Gospel during the pandemic. These grants have been used to purchase FM transmitters for “parking lot church,” cameras for live streaming, and copyright license to keep everything legal.

This is an excellent example of one congregation acting out of Christian love to share their abundance to help other congregations share the Gospel.

Love + sharing = Gospel is shared.

Recently, Our Savior’s Lutheran Church in Leland gave their Lenten offering to the Northeastern Iowa Synod so we could administer grants to help other congregations build and install “Little Free Pantries.” This is a second example of one congregation acting out of Christian love to help other congregations share the Gospel.

Love + sharing = Gospel is shared.

Mission Support is the exact same gift, only on a larger scale. Congregations give Mission Support out of Christian love to the Northeastern Iowa Synod so that the synod can, in turn, support Lutheran Social Services in Iowa, Wartburg Theological Seminary, the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago, Luther College, Wartburg College, congregational grants, the truly global ministry of the ELCA, and synodical ministry close to home. Because of Mission Support, the Gospel is shared, along with Christian love and an understanding of the abundance of God’s grace and love.

Love + sharing = Gospel is shared.

Thank you for your love, for your sharing, and for making ministry happen near and around the world.

— Pastor Mark A. Anderson
Assistant to the Bishop

Love + Sharing = Gospel is Shared
New grants to help congregations set up Little Free Pantries

Our Savior’s Lutheran Church in Leland has given the Northeastern Iowa Synod nearly $600 to help congregations in the synod set up “Little Free Pantries” in their communities. This money will be shared as grants to congregations to defray the cost of building and installing a Little Free Pantry. Already, 18 congregations and ministries have established 19 Little Free Pantries in this synod. These containers allow congregations and community members to “leave what they can and take what they need,” including food, personal hygiene products, and school supplies.

The Little Pantries allow people to give and take anonymously 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. A note that someone left in a pantry in this synod shows how important these pantries can be to people’s lives. (See box.)

Information about the pantries, including building plans, can be found at www.neiasynod.org/ministries/hunger.

To learn more about how to access or contribute to this grant, please contact Pastor. Mark A. Anderson, assistant to the Bishop, at andersonm@neiasynod.org.

Why am I Here?
It is winter dark. The kind of dark that happens in mid-winter. The entire world is sleeping. Everyone but me. I’m going to a parking lot to creep to a box like a teenager on a scavenger hunt. I am hunting — but my goal isn’t something from a list made by one of my friends. I’m literally hunting for food for my family. That was before.

Now my pay is cut in half and I can’t afford to pay the mortgage and the utility bills and buy food. We’ve done the normal things to cut down: Fancy coffee is a thing of the past. Clothes come from Thrift stores. We use the library for books, videos, and music. Much of our food comes from the Dollar Store — it’s more affordable, but it isn’t the healthiest. A trip to Aldi’s is a treat because we can afford a package of chocolate sandwich cookies.

But these economy measures aren’t enough. I have to figure out how to get something high sugar for my diabetic son. This isn’t a treat — if his glucose goes low, he could die without something high in sugar like juice or hard candy or syrup. I have to buy soap, toilet paper, hygiene items. The stuff you can’t do without. We make too much to qualify for government benefits and the stimulus payment only goes so far.

I don’t want the neighbors to know I am failing.

On this night, my heart is as dark as the sky. I make my way to the magic box of love to gather food to supplement our cupboards. Juice and apple sauce. Canned milk, pasta, chicken, and tuna. Some canned vegetables. Peanut butter and whole grain crackers. My son will be safe. I can make pasta casseroles. We can all have healthyish snacks of peanut butter and crackers.

My heart isn’t as dark as it was. There is a glimmer of hope there now. I can get through another week.

I know there are a lot of people like me. Hiding in the dark so no one knows.

Saturday, Sept. 25, 2021

Mark your calendars for Saturday, Sept. 25, for the installation of the new Bishop of the Northeastern Iowa Synod. The event will take place at Trinity Lutheran Church in Mason City and will be livestreamed on Facebook.

Men’s Ministry offers new resources and groups

Men of all ages are invited to join in some upcoming Lutheran Men in Ministry (LMM) events offered in person and online, including new Bible studies, book discussions and a men’s retreat.

PROJECT TWELVE
Resources offered through the LMM’s Project Twelve aim to help men become better fathers, husbands and leaders. Jim Rathe, facilitator for the Northeastern Iowa Synod’s Men’s Ministry Network, says the resources can be used individually or in a group setting, and many of them are geared for younger men. For example, the “Fathering in 15” self-study series offers 15 online sessions of 15 minutes each to help men manage their life and build healthy relationships with their children and their mother. Topics include fathering skills, work-family balance, managing money, child discipline and more.

“Men can do the sessions at their own pace to help them become better parents and to learn how to get through issues they may be struggling with,” Rathe says.

LIFELINE BIBLE STUDY
Written by 13 men from five denominations involved with Project Twelve, the online Lifelines small group bible study series has been described as Christ-centered conversations dealing with issues critical to men.

“This study was developed for guys like us,” Rathe says. “It is based on the Master Builder Bible with study questions reworked to pertain to current things that are happening in men’s lives so people can relate to the studies better and think about them differently.”

The men’s group from Rathe’s congregation, Grace Lutheran in Tripoli, will meet Monday evenings in June for the six-week Lifelines Bible study. If other men’s groups from the Northeastern Iowa Synod would like to participate, Rathe says he is available to help set up additional Lifeline sessions through Zoom.

ONLINE BOOK DISCUSSION
LMM’s weekly book discussion group meets online on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. “We usually read two chapters a week and discuss them,” Rathe says. “The books have been really good and thought-provoking about church and what is going on today.” Rathe says about 10 men from across the U.S. have been participating through Zoom each week, including three from the Northeastern Iowa Synod. He invites men to join the book discussion in June to read and discuss The Query by Larry Moeller. The book is a collection of stories the author gathered from encounters with strangers when he posed the question, “What is the reason for the hope that is within you?”

“Larry Moeller lives in Tennessee, but he is a Northeastern Iowa Synod native from the Buck Creek area and is a graduate of Iowa State University,” Rathe says.

Men wanting to join the book discussion can purchase the book online and use the book discussion group link on the synod’s Men’s Ministry web page.

ONE YEAR TO LIVE RETREAT
Men of all ages are encouraged to mark their calendar for Nov. 5 – 7, 2021, when an in-person “One Year to Live” retreat will take place at Camp Ewalu near Strawberry Point. The “One Year to Live” retreats were on hiatus during the COVID pandemic, but they are starting up again this summer at various locations across the country.

This 45-hour spiritual boot camp is an opportunity for men to reexamine their life and priorities, make decisions for their future, and discover together how God has equipped them to live. Registration information for the November retreat will be available this summer.

To learn more about these ministries, visit the synod’s Men’s Ministry Network web page, www.neiasynod.org/ministries/mens-ministry, the Lutheran Men in Mission website, www.lutheranmeninmission.org, or contact Rathe at jlrtreat@gmail.com.

As a community of women created in the image of God, called to discipleship in Jesus Christ, and empowered by the Holy Spirit, we commit ourselves to grow in faith, affirm our gifts, support one another in our callings, engage in ministry and action, and promote healing and wholeness in the church, the society and the world.

From the President

I can’t believe it has been almost 2 years since we were together in Waverly at Wartburg College for our SWO Gathering in 2019. I sure hope to see you this year! Things will be different. We will gather for a half day event at St. Paul’s Lutheran Church in Waverly. We are limited to 50 people in person, but can have many more join us virtually via Zoom. Not so sure about technology? It’s ok, maybe you have a friend or family member that can help you out. Or if you are not quite ready to travel the distance but want to gather with us, maybe you or your church would be willing to host a “viewing” party with nearby neighbors. The possibilities are endless. We do however request that you register, voting members will be mailed a packet for the business meeting.

I am so excited to have bible study with Bishop Andrea. She has been a wonderful addition to our synod for the past year. We are also going to hear Pastor Kyle Barton, the new Spiritual Life Leader at Lutheran Service in Iowa, during our worship which will close out the morning. In between we will handle the business meeting. This is where we use our Pivot don’t Panic tool kit and focus on what we can do and where we want to go in the future.

Looking forward to seeing you June 19 in Waverly in person or via Zoom!

Blessings, Anna Jetson

Discipleship Committee

Summer will soon be upon us with a new hope of more services and activities within the church. A small boy told me he couldn’t wait for summer which meant he could go fishing with his Papa. I began thinking of his excitement over fishing for fish and our task to fish for people. My verse for today was Matthew 4:19 And he said to them, “Follow me, and I will make you fish for people.” Is there a way that you can be that fisherman, trying to fish for people in your community? During this time of Covid19, many people have found themselves isolated from their faith family. What a joy it is to hear of churches setting up outreach services. Using technology to bring services to shut ins and encourage others to view on-line services or Bible studies. A woman told me that she feels she is more faithful now, since she can view various church services on her computer. She loved seeing the churches via Zoom or on YouTube. Jesus was an advocate for outreach and he calls all of his disciples to do the same. So, as you travel on your faith journey, ask others to walk alongside of you. Be that advocate for Christ.

Justice Committee
Can we talk? Can we talk about something that is heavy on my heart? Can we really talk about the hard stuff, occurring in the world? How?
If I use the wrong word. But how do I know a word is wrong, if I can’t have an honest conversation with someone who can tell me what that word really says to them.

Lately, I have been reading articles about conversations and racism. First one was from Mayo Clinic about having conversations with your children. The most recent one was a blog from SparkHouse using the acronym FAIR – Factual, Age Appropriate, Interest and Real life.

My friend of another nationality and I have been having conversations about we see on TV. We have noticed the faces have changed. I notice the story lines have changed on the TV shows I like to watch. However, until you and I can sit together and have an open conversation about the questions we have or the things we want to know, I don’t know that anything has changed. I can sit at a table with many different shades of color, but unless all can freely ask the questions and give responses how can change occur? How does one measure equality?

I am so thankful for our God, who sees each of us as we are. I pray that we will all be able to see the other as God sees us!

LWR Update
Lutheran World Relief is working with dozens of local partners to help those affected by disasters recover and to strengthen the economies of communities in Central America – specifically the Northern Triangle – to build food security, resilience and stability. These investments include vocational and business training programs for youth, as well as efforts to help coffee and cocoa farmers increase the productivity and quality of their crops and connect to markets that will bring them better income.

LWR has partnered with the U.S. government, national, regional and municipal governments in Central America, international and local organizations, foundations, the private sector, U.S. churches, agricultural cooperatives and the people themselves to invest in this future. Through these partnerships, we have seen the social fabric of communities strengthened and thousands of people earning enough income to support their families, providing for immediate needs and setting aside savings for what is to come.

LWR is committed to walking alongside these communities as they work to build better lives for their families. Thank you all for working so diligently to provide items and monetary gifts to help hundreds of families within our reach.

What Can You Do This Summer to Deepen Your Kids’ Faith?

It’s now June and summer is just beginning. For many families, that means a (slightly) less hectic schedule for a few glorious weeks. At the same time, it can mean small-scale panic at what to actually do with the extra time your kids have.

Solution: Take the opportunity to get more creative with engaging together spiritually as a family. Here are some ideas to get you started!

1. Choose a gospel to read as a family (Matthew, Mark, Luke or John). Decide on a timeframe (days or weeks) and divide the chapters accordingly.

2. Find a way to serve others together as a family.

3. Attend Vacation Bible School. VBS is a fun week offered by many churches for kids to play and learn together.

4. Invite your pastor over for dinner. Invite him to dinner and give your kids the opportunity to ask questions they may not want to ask you (or that you may not know how to answer)!

5. Encourage your kids to invite a friend to church.

6. Visit a different church (another denomination or religion). Then discuss the difference in beliefs and practices versus your own...and why they differ.

7. Write letters to God. Have each family member take 10 minutes to write a letter to God. Pick a topic that is relevant at a given time for your family—it could be something light-hearted like complaints you’d like to “file” or something more serious like expressing disappointment about unanswered prayer. Share your letters.

8. Go to a Christian bookstore together and pick out a devotional. It doesn’t have to be January 1 to start a devotional habit. Take your kids to a Christian store and select a devotional book to start.

9. Create a family prayer list. Write down the biggest needs for your family and those you know and commit to praying together consistently throughout the summer.
Adventures of Flat Jesus

This summer let’s take Jesus everywhere we go. Let Flat Jesus be a reminder of Jesus’ real presence in every place we find ourselves and as a fun reminder to help others to encounter God.

1. Decorate your Flat Jesus and laminate him if you are able.

2. Take Flat Jesus everywhere with you and take lots of pictures and share them.

3. Talk with friends and family about what you and Flat Jesus experienced.

4. Set up a Facebook or Instagram page for your church family to share their pictures and experiences.

I am with you always.
